“Grant Writing Tips”

PRESENTER:

Jodi Smith, PhD ELS

Jodi Smith is the Research Facilitator for Health Sciences at the University of Manitoba. She is located at the Bannatyne campus, and her role is to assist faculty members with preparing their health-related research grants, through reviewing and providing comments on logic, adherence to the instructions, editing, and proofreading. Jodi has a PhD in Pharmacology and a MSc in Anatomy and Cell Sciences, both from the University of Manitoba. Jodi previously worked as a Clinical Research Scientist, designing clinical trial protocols for a pharmaceutical company. She was also involved in writing clinical study reports, clinical sections of the Common Technical Document for submission to regulatory authorities, and clinical product labelling. Jodi is a board certified Editor in Life Sciences, and she is a member of the American Medical Writers Association, National Organization for Research Development Professionals, and Canadian Association of Research Administrators.
